

2. Boris S. Berkovitch has been designated by Chairman Jenner as Chief Counsel of a special subcommittee of the Senate Rules Committee which will study proposed codes of procedure to govern Senate investigating committees. Except in their broadest application, it is not believed that these rules will have much effect on CIA activities. However, insofar as they may provide that investigations may only be made after approval by a majority vote of the committees concerned as well as other safeguards, they will have some impact if approved and followed. Mr. Berkovitch, who is 33 years old, was formerly an Assistant Attorney General in New York State, and is legal assistant to Justice Charles D. Breitel of the New York Appellate Court. Justice Breitel was formerly counsel to Governor Dewey.
